Ask yourself and your chapter sisters, what components make us not want to miss our meetings? What makes us eagerly look forward to getting together? Certainly the special bonding time that builds and sustains members’ friendships might be the most frequent response. We enthusiastically anticipate these opportunities to personally reconnect and renew with our supportive friends.

Maybe not the first answer for many, yet a crucial consideration is the structured time invested in meetings when we “make things happen.” The engaged planning and dedicated action that transpire during the Procedure for P.E.O. Chapter Meeting achieve our goals and purposes. Indeed, both these vital social and business functions bind our organization together as P.E.O. shapes the world into a better place.

There is also another “top of the list” answer for many members. At its finest, the third vital component of meeting time is a magnet program. The worthwhile topic or activity must be one that draws us. While not all programs need to be what might have been our personal choice, quality programming must be more than just “interesting”—it should be stimulating; more than just “enjoyable”—it should be valuable.

Quality programming is never an accident—it is always the result of high intentions, positive directions and sincere effort. It is crucial—today’s busy woman doesn’t want to sit through meeting after meeting wishing she were somewhere else...

This is a tall order for the program planning committee. Consider having a suggestion box for all members to participate in offering programming ideas. Ask questions to encourage input, i.e., what new skills or topics would challenge or motivate? What might members like to try? What new variety will stimulate participation? Don’t minimize opportunities to explore relevant subjects. As continuous learners, we all benefit from being better informed.

If you are in a reciprocity group or an area with more than one chapter, plan brainstorming sessions with other chapter program chairmen. Share themes, ideas, speakers, skits, mixers. Borrow creativity. We don’t always need to reinvent the wheel. Keep an “idea file.” All members are resources. We must reach out and try new approaches in building a yearbook of effective, successful and inviting programs.

Speaking of inviting, consider including prospective members with chapter sisters during a special program and social time. This is a positive way to showcase the value of our meeting opportunities.

If your chapter hasn’t reviewed its approach to programming in a few years, now may be the time. We cannot lull ourselves into thinking that our current programming strategy will always continue to produce invested members. We cannot neglect opportunities to understand different challenging topics because they might be out of our comfort zone.

Vital, energetic chapter meeting programs are a strong “plus” in strengthening chapter life as well as “Expanding Our Vision!”

On behalf of the Sisterhood, I thank Donna Shavlik, Estes Park, Colorado, for seven years of dedicated service on the Cottey College Board of Trustees. Her gentle wisdom offered a valued perspective of women’s higher education today.

Two new trustees were elected to seven year terms on the Cottey board effective June 1. We welcome Kathy A. Leffler, Chapter BA, Phoenix, Arizona, and Janet M. Hansen, Chapter DW, River Falls, Wisconsin, and are confident they will each serve with distinction.

Forward!

Traveling Tea Party
Chapter J has initiated “The Traveling Tea Party” for those sisters who, because of health concerns, cannot attend meetings. I was the recipient of one of these heartwarming visits.

Five sisters came to my home bearing tea kettle, goodies, cups, saucers, silverware and napkins. The tea was steaming, the goodies were delicious, smiles were bright and laughter was rampant. It was a beautiful expression of loving concern.

Cottey Connections & P.E.O. Ties Save a Sister’s Life
Being Cottey College roommates and P.E.O. sisters led to the February 16, 2010, donation of Christine Renner’s kidney to her close friend Carla Wright. The surgeries have been successful and Carla will not have to undergo dialysis as originally forecast. Christine and Carla were at Cottey College from 1975 to 1977.

Christine is a member of Chapter PX, San Leandro, California, and is an occupational therapist. Carla is an attorney. She is married with one child and is a member of Chapter LY, Sacramento, California.

As a result of Christine’s heroic act, there has been television and newspaper coverage of this event, prominently mentioning their Cottey College and P.E.O. connections and loyalties thereto.

Marilyn Winkler, PX, San Leandro, California

March-April Cover Story Inspires
I want to express my gratitude for the cover page and article by Sharron Eckert, AT, Fairfield Glade, Tennessee. I enjoyed reading about her art and viewing the absolutely wonderful pine needle baskets she creates. I am so proud to have Sharron as a sister. I am reminded of other creative P.E.O.s whom I have known and read about over the years. Where do we find so many wonderful women?

Perhaps my interest in the pine needle baskets was primed by my work with a fair trade organization in Nicaragua that also sells pine needle baskets made by peasant crafters. Having seen their simple baskets, I am impressed with the creativity and beauty of Sharron’s natural wonders.

As a nonresident member of Chapter AI, Chelmsford, Massachusetts, I have felt distant from my sister and have started reading The Record more than in the past. This article makes me want to get going on starting a new chapter with another sister who is living in my area of Maine.

Sharon Jones, AI, Chelmsford, Massachusetts

A Stylish Future P.E.O.
Susie Baker, resident artist and president of Chapter CS, Tucson, Arizona, paints a onesie for all the new little girls born to sisters in her chapter. My daughter Jennifer Maceda dressed her daughter, my granddaughter, Kaylee in one of the “P.E.O. in Training” onesies. Very cute!

Peggy Graving, Past President, Montana State Chapter

Appreciation for the P.E.O. Website
I would like to say having the web to access most of our needs with forms, etc. is most efficient and helpful. The information given to help us become familiar has been most appreciated. Our sisterhood is a blessing.

Nancy Buckman, F, Quincy, Illinois
Joan Allen, president of Chapter E, Omaha, Nebraska, recently had the chapter’s 1889 charter restored and, on the advice of a paper archivist, is scanning other important chapter documents. The archivist provided her with several tips to restore, conserve and store important P.E.O. documents. Here Joan poses questions your chapter can use as a checklist to make sure your chapter’s charter and other P.E.O. documents are well preserved.

Protecting Your Chapter’s P.E.O. Archives: Questions Every Chapter Should Ask

by Joan Allen, E, Omaha, Nebraska

Did you know that each P.E.O. chapter has a charter which was presented at the time of your chapter’s formation? Where do you keep your chapter’s charter? It should be in the president’s box.

How is your charter protected? Ours was framed in a too-small frame with glass and no mat—I doubt acid-free materials were used.

What condition is your charter in? If your chapter is as old as ours (1889), your original charter may be creased, mended with tape, torn and yellowed with age. The condition of our charter gave the state visitor fits! If your charter needs cleaning or repairs, contact a paper archivist to perform any necessary conservation work. I called the Gerald R. Ford Conservation Center in Omaha and they referred me to an experienced conservationist. Our cost was $190 to remove tape residue and repair tear lines where our charter was folded. She also gave great, free do-it-yourself advice!

Are your signature pages protected in archival quality sheet protectors? The only way to be sure they are of archival quality is if you personally select the sheet protectors.

Have you scanned and safely stored back-up copies of your chapter’s charter and signature pages? If so, are they stored in an officer’s safety deposit box in case the original is destroyed in a flood, fire, earthquake or other natural disaster?

Did you know that your charter can be scanned and cleaned up to look perfect? My son, an artist with computer experience, scanned the charter as a large file, digitally removed the remaining tape residue and crease lines using photo editing software. We now have a flawless, high resolution copy for display purposes. The original copy remains preserved as-is in our president’s box. If you have scanned and printed your chapter’s historical archives, did you use archival paper? After charter and signature pages were copied and reprinted on archival paper, did you date them and note that archival materials were used?

P.E.O. is steeped in history and we value our past. As we embrace the present and look forward to the future, it’s important to preserve our charters and signature pages for generations to come. The suggestions on this page show how relatively simple and inexpensive it can be to protect your chapter’s archives.
Daisy Do Tell is a new regular feature in The P.E.O. Record. A Frequently Asked Questions forum, this is a page where you will find answers to commonly asked questions about anything and everything P.E.O.—including the P.E.O. philanthropies and P.E.O. rules and regulations.

Question: A special P.E.O. in our chapter celebrated her 100th birthday. We would like to honor her with an article in The P.E.O. Record. Is this possible?

Answer: We always enjoy hearing about sisters who are celebrating a significant birthday; however, we regret that we are unable to publish the material. A great number of our members are celebrating birthdays of 100 plus years. We would like to honor them all, but it is not possible with the number of submissions we receive. Local chapters are wonderful about holding special celebrations for centenarian sisters and P.E.O. encourages them to continue to do so.

Question: Where do I find paperwork for the projects online?

Answer: In the members’ section of the P.E.O. website peointernational.org, there is a menu along the left side of the page. Look for the “Projects” heading. Under this heading you will find links for Cottey College and our five educational assistance philanthropic projects. Simply click on the project for which you would like to get paperwork.

Question: Can women apply for both an ELF loan and PCE grant?

Answer: Yes, as long as they meet the requirements for each.

Question: Can I copy information from the projects section for a woman I know who may be eligible for our assistance?

Answer: Please encourage such women to review our project information from the public side of our website. They’ll be able to find the P.E.O. Projects Fact Chart, Project Information Cards and Procedures & Policies for each project and a link to the Cottey College website.

Question: Our chapter is having a rummage sale fundraiser. Can we offer tax receipts for donations to the sale?

Answer: No. Your chapter is tax exempt under the IRS code section 501(c)(4), but is not a charitable organization; therefore, donations made to your chapter are not deductible as charitable contributions. Because all fundraising expenses and proceeds must be run through the bank accounts of the local chapter, rummage sale donations cannot be considered as charitable gifts to our projects.

Question: How can I order the gavel guard for our outgoing chapter president?

Answer: The gavel guard may be ordered from the P.E.O. website peointernational.org. In the members’ section, find the “Online Ordering” heading in the menu on the left side. Under this heading, click on the “Browse Online Jewelry Catalog Now!” link. This link will redirect you to the Herff Jones website where you should click on “Pins & Guards.” You may also order the gavel guard from the public section of the P.E.O. website by going to the “Online Jewelry Ordering” heading in the menu on the left side. Under this heading, click on either the “Browse online catalog!” link or the Gavel Pins photo to be redirected to the Herff Jones website. You may also call Herff Jones directly at 1-800-422-4348. (Herff Jones is the official jeweler of the P.E.O. Sisterhood.)

Watch for a series of articles in upcoming issues of The P.E.O. Record by the Special Committee to Study P.E.O. Ceremonies and Meeting Procedures as they consider literary, religious and historical elements that have shaped them.

With her enthusiasm for overseas travel and interest in cultures worldwide, it’s not surprising to learn that Peg’s business has a global purpose. She is the founder of Amson Technology, LC, which provides consulting services in climate change, sustainability and carbon offsets. Peg’s vision—and the vision of Amson Technology—is to alleviate world hunger through the sharing and application of technology to create a new sustainable agricultural system with a reduced environmental footprint.

Peg is the primary author of a methodology in which bacteria replaces nitrogen fertilizer to create a more sustainable agricultural production system in developing countries. She explains, “The production of nitrogen fertilizer is very energy intensive and releases considerable carbon dioxide emissions. If we can eliminate the application of nitrogen fertilizer on legume crops (such as soybeans and cowpeas) we can permanently reduce the amount of nitrogen fertilizer produced and avoid the carbon dioxide it creates.”

Last summer the United Nations gave approval for the broad application of this methodology—the first agricultural climate change methodology in the world. As part of the Kyoto Protocol, which industrialized countries have signed as a commitment to reduce their emissions of greenhouse gases, it is a historic accomplishment in the area of climate change. “Plants are the one thing that take carbon out of the air,” said Peg. “The U.N.’s decision highlights how agriculture can provide solutions to climate change.”

Peg Armstrong-Gustafson, LJ, Des Moines, Iowa, grew up in northeast Iowa near Decorah. She attended Iowa State University where she earned a degree in animal science and then went on to graduate with her MBA from Drake University in Des Moines. Although she has strong ties to Iowa, she is anything but tied down, having traveled to locations all over the world including Greece, Italy, England, Thailand, Chile, Argentina, Brazil, Turkey and North and South Vietnam. “I find every place I go beautiful because the people are just fascinating,” said Peg. “When I travel I think, ‘How can I experience this culture?’” change issues while feeding a growing world population. While this initiative helps with climate change the greatest value is that I am able to take agricultural technology to parts of the world that are starving and hopefully help them grow more food to feed themselves. That is my ultimate goal."

Right now there are field trials of the methodology in Burkina Faso and Niger, Africa. Peg explains, "We work with the Lutheran world relief workers on the ground in Africa. They have the network of farmers that we need." Local farmers work with agronomists who know how to conduct field trials. The farmers and agronomists gather variables that are needed—they note dates of crop emergence, capture yield, measure root structure and gather other data to evaluate the performance of the product. Peg will travel to Africa in December to see the trials in progress firsthand.

“The United Nations mandated that the carbon reduction systems go to third world countries. This is very important as the people in these countries get access to technology that they would never be able to pay for. The key is we are taking these methods to parts of Africa where the people can be helped," said Peg. “It's a mutually beneficial project. The methodology teaches farmers better use of their water and land, which leads to increased crop yields, which leads to a higher caloric intake for the people in these communities. Extra food that is not consumed can then be sold into the marketplace, which helps improve their economic position. It is an environmentally and economically sensible model.”

The long term goal of the project is to see the new technology expand beyond the borders of the project and be adopted by all farmers to create a more sustainable and productive farming operation.

Peg & P.E.O.

Peg Armstrong-Gustafson became a member of the Sisterhood in 1988. “I actually found out about P.E.O. from a man,” she recalls. “He was someone I met through work—his wife was a P.E.O. and he knew about my involvement with FFA and other service organizations. He introduced me to his wife, who was a member of Chapter LJ in Des Moines and she invited me to join.

“My P.E.O. sisters are very supportive—in big and subtle ways. They send letters of encouragement and letters of congratulations. It’s also great how they are so genuinely interested in me and everyone—they are always asking about my life, my job, my family.”

As Peg sees it, the benefits of P.E.O. are many. She said, “The best part of P.E.O. is the fact that we are such advocates for women and that we do it in such a powerful way—uplifting women with our projects and the international scope of it. For me personally, the best part is the interaction with the extraordinary women of every walk of life.”

Peg hopes that one day her daughter, Alexandra, will become a P.E.O. too. Alexandra, a senior in high school, plans to attend Iowa State University to study environmental science. Like her mother, she is interested in climate change. “My P.E.O. chapter has been unbelievable with my daughter,” said Peg. “They always ask me about her, follow her swim meets in the newspaper and they recommended her for a STAR scholarship.” Alexandra went to Antarctica last year and she will soon present a program about her trip to Chapter LJ.

Peg’s ambitious climate change project takes up much of her time, but in her free time she enjoys gardening, traveling, attending her daughter’s swim meets and going to Iowa State football and basketball games with her BIL Gregg.
P.E.O.—A Team of Sisters and BILs

by William (Ken) Lyon, BIL, SR, Tiburon, California

I’ve had the privilege of being a BIL for nearly 46 of my 67 years. Make that a BIL while living in four countries, four states and eight cities. Chapter designators have become a little foggy to me. This phenomenon was due to my Air Force career which has taken my wonderful third generation P.E.O. wife Shirley from place to place and chapter to chapter.

Can you imagine a better way to establish yourself in a new community than having a social infrastructure ready and willing to embrace you when you arrive in town? P.E.O. has been particularly valuable to us as an Air Force family by always being there for us. Let’s face it, there are a lot of folks that look upon service families as transients and opt not to get personally involved since they assume we’ll be moving on shortly.

Fortunately that’s not the P.E.O. way. At least it hasn’t been for us. After retiring from the Air Force, and subsequently from industry, we opted to stay in Virginia so Shirley could complete her full seven-year commitment on the Virginia State Board. As any BIL knows, that guarantees him an opportunity to be fairly heavily involved in P.E.O. itself. From phone switchboard operator, to driver and other duties as assigned, involvement will be there.

Embrace it—it’s for a good cause. That cause really came home to me when I attended my first International Convention. The speeches by recipients of the various loan and grant programs and Cottey College were compelling. P.E.O.’s selection process for such representatives is certainly on-target. Speaking of conventions, as a retired officer I’ve had extensive speaking experience—I particularly enjoyed keeping that skill in use by giving two separate BIL responses at two state conventions for two different state presidents.

Now that we seem to be settled in a home close to our grandchildren we are still able to fill the tradition of multi-chapter involvement. It started with a wonderful chapter, GR, in San Francisco, then Chapter NE in Marin County and now we find Shirley as a “Sister on Sabbatical” in Chapter SR, Tiburon, California.

Living across the country hasn’t kept us away from Virginia where we still try to attend annual conventions and enjoy the experience with our friends. Another opportunity to see our P.E.O. friends comes with the traveling we do. Whether it’s a chapter in Honolulu or Maryland, it’s always fun to “check-in” again.

Today we are all receiving multiple requests for support from a plethora of charities; it’s very reassuring for me to know that donations to P.E.O. go exactly where they are needed and intended to go. It’s nice the way sisters allow their BILs to become part of the action. Social activities, “office support” and financial support tie your sisters and their BILs together. It’s a great combination and it makes me consider P.E.O. a team effort. A team of sisters and BILs!
Margaret Hoorneman, a member of Chapter FV in Sanibel, Florida, has written a musical adaptation of Charles Dickens’ “Great Expectations,” and will see its world premiere at this summer’s Utah Shakespearean Festival in Cedar City, Utah.

Margaret has been a P.E.O. for 64 years—she was initiated into Chapter CD, Le Mars, Iowa, in 1946. Now 96 years old, Margaret is a former high school English teacher. She retired to Florida many years ago, only to pick up her pen at age 83 and spend several years adapting her favorite novel into a story that would work for musical theater. With help from her family and friends in Florida and California, “Great Expectations: The Musical” was finally hatched and performed in May 2008 at the Florida Repertory Theater in Fort Myers. Since then, it has been honed and fine-tuned at various venues in Los Angeles, including the Odyssey Theater.

Recently, it was announced that Margaret’s musical will have its world premiere at the Utah Shakespearean Festival on July 1, 2010, at the Randall L. Jones Theater in Cedar City, Utah, and run through August 28, 2010.

For more information about Margaret’s musical adaptation, visit the “Great Expectations: The Musical” website at www.greatexpectationsmusical.com.
The Question: How has P.E.O. opened doors for you in a new community?

I was honored with an invitation to join Chapter EJ, Eagle Grove, Iowa, in 1956. One of the members (my best friend to this day) gave me a gift that I’m sure, at the time, neither of us realized would be the gift to last a lifetime.

My husband’s job has taken us to several states where I have been welcomed by sisters, finally to retire in Sun City, Arizona, where I spent 20 years as a member of Chapter CC.

At the age of 83 we moved to Marcy, New York, to be near our son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

I had calls from two chapters in the area inviting me to visit. The first chapter I visited sent someone to pick me up for the meeting. She was very special and we hit it off. (She is still picking me up.)

As I was introduced to each member they were so warm and friendly I felt I had found a home with Chapter BW. These women epitomize the true meaning of P.E.O.

About 10 years ago my BIL and I built a new home in the mountains of southwestern North Carolina where we would be spending our summers. One year, we were going to be traveling from our home in Florida to North Carolina. I saw in the local North Carolina paper that there was to be a P.E.O. luncheon during that time. I asked my BIL if we could leave a day or so early so I could go to the luncheon and possibly meet some local P.E.O.s. “Sure,” he said. I made a reservation and went. To start with, I happened to sit at a table with a past president of Florida State Chapter who introduced me to another past president of Florida State Chapter.

I then was introduced to several other local P.E.O.s and thoroughly enjoyed my day.

You can imagine my surprise when I went to church that next Sunday and there were those same P.E.O.s.

Ten years later, those same P.E.O.s are my good friends. Because of that luncheon, my BIL and I immediately had contacts and friends for the summers. I have also become quite active as a “summer sister” in Chapter BJ, Cashiers, North Carolina. The sisters in BJ have welcomed me as “one of them.”

So, as you can see, P.E.O. has opened many doors for me in the past 10 years and has helped me forge many new, good friendships.

Wanda Gebhardt,
FS, Fort Meyers, Florida

My husband and I had stayed at P.E.O. bed and breakfast homes many times when we were on vacation and had delightful experiences. After we retired in 1998, we decided to move from Indiana to Tennessee. Staying with P.E.O.s in the towns we were considering sounded like a good way to get acquainted with the community.

We stayed with friendly and helpful bed and breakfast hostesses in Chattanooga and Cookeville. After two visits to Cookeville, we were “hooked” and decided to move there. We asked our hostess, a member of Chapter L, to recommend a realtor. The realtor was a member of Chapter L too and was a real delight to work with. She helped us find our new home and recommended places to eat and visit.

After settling in, I visited the two chapters in town and dimitted to Chapter AO, Cookeville, Tennessee, from Chapter CW in Lafayette, Indiana, where I was a charter initiate in 1972. I had lived in Lafayette for 43 years and was somewhat concerned with finding new friends and activities, but my new chapter was a godsend. They welcomed me with open arms and made moving to Cookeville a wonderful experience for me.

Joy Mitchell, AO,
Cookeville, Tennessee

Being a P.E.O. means having instant friends. When my husband and I moved to another state in a different part of the country, my new sisters shared the names of their favorite restaurants, shops, markets, local points of interest and the best routes to each of these. The chapter programs are interesting to all but especially informative to me, a newcomer. Being a P.E.O. has certainly smoothed my transition into a new community.

Ann Dixon,
FG, San Angelo, Texas

P.E.O.s are truly the same wherever you go. I moved from Ketchikan, Alaska, to the state of Washington in 2002, living in a motor home for six months before living in Coupeville on Whidbey Island. Our first location was an RV park in Anacortes. I really missed my P.E.O. sisters, so asked my chapter in Ketchikan for some contact in Anacortes. A chapter that had their meetings right there in the RV park’s club house contacted me. How convenient was that! They knew I wouldn’t be living there, but welcomed me as a visitor. A second chapter that met in homes also contacted me. It was wonderful. I thought both chapters were so gracious, since they knew I wouldn’t be living there.

I soon was contacted by the president of Chapter IJ in Coupeville, who met me at a Coupeville location and took me with her to the meetings. It was wonderful to be treated so special. It was so good to be with P.E.O. friends again. I didn’t visit other chapters on Whidbey, since I liked this chapter and knew I would be living in Coupeville.

The transition from an evening chapter to a morning chapter in retirement was also great. P.E.O.s are definitely the same wherever one goes and I have some great friends in P.E.O.

Barbara Chernikoff, IJ, Coupeville, Washington

My BIL is an interim pastor so we move frequently. When we moved to Lincoln, Nebraska, Chapter DK sent an invitation to join them. I wasn’t sure about P.E.O. so I called a friend in another state who was a P.E.O. (and a minister’s wife) to ask her to tell me more about it. She said it was a great way to have new friends when you move. I decided to join. The door that was opened in that community was making new friends other than those from our church. A door was opened for our daughter too because the chapter sponsored her for the PCE grant so she could go back to school to become a special education teacher.

We moved to the Brainerd, Minnesota, area and I transferred to Chapter CJ. I met sisters who were enthused about the projects and sponsored women for grants and loans and had fun working together raising the money to support them. They asked me to be vice president which would lead to the presidency. I told them that I was too shy to even say, “Second the motion,” but with their encouragement I did it and it opened a door for leadership that I never knew I had.

We moved to Paoli, Pennsylvania. There are women in our church from three different chapters, BE, AM and AR. Since we plan to go back to Minnesota, I did not transfer, but have been a regular visitor in all three chapters. A sister in one of these chapters has an elderly aunt who told me, “Just go to the chapter that serves the best lunch!” All three chapters welcomed me and made me feel like I belong. These chapters have opened many doors to all the history in this area through tours of the Valley Forge Chapel and some of the mansions of famous people in American history. The doors that open into the lives of so many sisters are the best doors that open.

I thought we would soon be moving back to Minnesota, but I have noticed my husband looking at the “Opportunity List” lately, so it may lead to another opportunity for me to meet more wonderful women in P.E.O. and open doors that I don’t even know about yet.

Judie Larson, CJ, Brainerd, Minnesota

I was brand new to town and attending an Emory University Women’s Club welcome coffee in Atlanta, Georgia. “Angel Barbara” (the perfect P.E.O.) introduced herself and immediately invited me into her life. She knew I missed San Antonio dreadfully and did all she could to expose me to every activity with which she was involved. Through her, I was initiated into P.E.O., I met my bosom buddy Bev, who led me to the most interesting jobs I have ever had. Angel Barbara was the most gracious, positive, accomplished— even saintly—woman I ever met. I am convinced my first contact with Barbara was the catalyst for ending my blues and giving me the tools and connections that resulted in some of the most interesting years of my life. I can’t think of Angel Barbara without tearing up. So, when our move to Omaha, Nebraska, was to disrupt my wonderful life once again, I knew my sadness would be short-lived. My husband told me his guilt about moving us was lessened because he knew P.E.O. would take good care of me—and they did. Now, when I see a soul as lost and lonely as I was in a new town and with few friends, I reach out the P.E.O. hand of friendship. I call it payback.

Joan Allen, E, Omaha, Nebraska

Special Committee for Membership Advancement Pilot Program Completed

by Becky Frazier, Editor, The P.E.O. Record

When last biennium’s Executive Board of International Chapter studied the results of the 2007 Noel-Levitz survey of the P.E.O. membership they created four ad hoc and special committees to strategize and develop responses to the concerns and suggestions revealed in the survey.

The Special Committee for Membership Advancement (SCMA) was created to develop strong, creative strategies and action plans that build and invigorate the purpose and values of P.E.O.

The SCMA carefully considered results from the Noel-Levitz survey and found it was evident that chapters wanted more relevant programming. With this in mind, the committee developed a pilot series of 10 programs. Fifty-one local chapters were selected by their states/provinces/districts (s/p/d) for special service to the P.E.O. Sisterhood to test these chapter-building programs. The programs were designed to strengthen a chapter by providing specific programming for them to use during the year. The selected 51 chapters have recently completed the pilot program and submitted their evaluations to the SCMA for review.

Each of the 51 chapters was given the same 10 programs to follow, all to be completed in the same order. The programs were:

- Launch—a timeline/overview for the year
- SWOT—recognize strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, threats
- Goal Setting—identify objectives for the chapter
- Nurture—a number of bonding activities to choose from
- Leadership #1—“Leadership: Vision, Voice and Values” by Dr. Judy Rogers
- Mutual Understanding—activities to strengthen teamwork
- Leadership #2—“Leadership: Women as Leaders” by Dr. Judy Rogers
- Growth and Nurture—activities and strategies to grow P.E.O.
- Inspire—“212 Degrees” DVD
- Wrap-up—review goals, complete evaluations

The 51 chapters dedicated a year to test the 10 programs. In the wrap-up program, they reviewed their goals and completed an evaluation form where they rated each program on a scale of one to 10. The SCMA has completed an initial review of the evaluations—complete results will be provided to all participating chapters when the final review is finished. With the evaluations of these 51 chapters, SCMA will be able to rate the effectiveness of the programs, make suggested adjustments and offer them for use by all chapters. Members of the SCMA state, “We appreciate the suggestions we received to improve the programs and are working to incorporate them.”

Thanks to the team of volunteer members of the SCMA: Judy Haar, Iowa State Chapter membership committee chairman; past state presidents Jane Attaway, Illinois; Carolyn Gilstrap, Utah; Ellen Knox, Texas; Pam Kregg, Nebraska; and President of International Chapter Elizabeth Garrels.

Thanks also to s/p/d chapter liaisons for their work with the participating local chapters. In addition to providing oversight to local chapters, the s/p/d chapters... served as an invaluable go-between for the SCMA and the local chapters.

Special gratitude is extended to the participating chapters for testing the programs and thoroughly evaluating them. A congratulatory certificate was presented to each chapter and they are also being recognized at their state/provincial/district conventions.

International Chapter underwrote the cost of the investment in this pilot program, which will ultimately benefit all local chapters when the selected programs become available on the International website. The SCMA pilot program was a true labor of love for P.E.O.s by P.E.O.s. The dedication of these sisters has greatly served to strengthen the Sisterhood.

What Participants Had to Say

Good feedback was received from the final evaluations of the SCMA pilot program. Here are a few of the comments from sisters in the test chapters:

“The pilot program enabled members who would not ordinarily give programs to participate and show their strengths.”

“Congratulations to whomever recognized the chapters’ need for meaningful programs—relevant too! This was an idea that was waiting to be found.”

“The leadership program reminded us that we are not just a social luncheon club but a sisterhood dedicated to each other’s needs and the goals of P.E.O. This program helped us pull out some new leaders.”

“This series of programs was upbeat and is steering us into the future.”

“The pilot program provided us the opportunity to take a really good look at our chapter without any hard feelings.”

“We have come to see the value of setting goals for a chapter on a regular basis. All chapters should have this (goal setting) program made available to them.”

“I believe our small and young chapter has measurably strengthened our foundation and look forward to our chapter experiencing the empowerment to follow us as we work to help women ‘reach for the stars’.”

“The exchange of ideas and opinions created a greater understanding between the elderly and younger sisters.”

“The programs helped us realize that as a group we are ready for changes to reflect today’s world.”

P.E.O. GPS
Three former unaffiliates offer suggestions for navigating in new communities

by Debbie Clason, Coordinator of Membership Development

Late last year, I moved from my home of more than 30 years in Indiana to be closer to family in Arizona. Thanks to my car’s GPS, I learned to travel from place to place—but who would help me navigate the process of building new relationships? Like many unaffiliates before me, I relied on the love and support of my P.E.O. sisters. “If you haven’t been an unaffiliate, it’s difficult to understand how disorienting it can be,” Judy Rainger, CG, Lubbock, Texas, said. “I’ve made so much of my P.E.O. membership. I feel like I have friends everywhere I move.” Judy, who was initiated into Chapter R, Portales, New Mexico, moved soon after to a community with a small population of P.E.O.s. When she found out the school librarian was a member, she approached her, which led to a transfer to Chapter P, Santa Fe, New Mexico.

“That taught me to be very proactive.” Since then Judy has used bed and breakfast contacts to help her become acclimated when she moved to Virginia, and find a friendly place to stay in Wyoming while she was writing a chapter in a book about Buffalo Bill.

“The system does work,” Marietta Beckham, Chapter AI, Henderson, Nevada, said. Marietta, who says she could very well be the “poster child for the P.E.O. membership process,” is active in her 11th P.E.O. chapter. Her experiences as an unaffiliate were an integral part of her acceptance speech as incoming Nevada State Chapter president in 2009.

“I’m sure I wouldn’t have found friends in all those new communities so quickly without P.E.O.,” she said. “My mother always told me, ‘Pay your dues and wear your emblem to any newcomer gathering.’ Sure enough, sisters always noticed my little gold star or P.E.O. recognition pin, resulting in faster contact than through the official chapter-to-chapter form from my previous chapter.”

“P.E.O. provided me with new friends and an instant network.”

Judy agreed. “P.E.O. provided me with new friends and an instant network. These are the women who can tell you which doctors to go to, find you a realtor and recommend which plumber to use.”

And, as many unaffiliates discover, these are also the women who will offer emotional support when you’re missing the comfort of friends and family. Martha McElroy, Chapter N, Tuscaloosa, Alabama, recounted how P.E.O. came to her rescue when she moved from East Texas, her home of 35 years, to Tuscaloosa, Alabama, to be closer to her married daughter. The move was traumatic enough, but the day after Martha and her husband arrived in town, her daughter left for the summer to coordinate the University of Alabama’s Oxford Study Abroad Program. Thankfully, a P.E.O. sister showed up on her doorstep and invited her to a chapter meeting.

“So the summer that I had dreaded so much with my children in England became a lovely one because I had my P.E.O. sisters to help guide me through. We made a wonderful move,” Martha said. “I have a gorgeous 23-month old granddaughter that I am enjoying immensely. And P.E.O. lets me show pictures!”
When you receive the name and contact information of an unaffiliate who has moved to your area, call to welcome her as soon as possible. Quite possibly, your friendly voice will be one of the first she will hear as she settles in to her new home.

Invite her to an upcoming meeting or social event. “Assign one sister to each unaffiliate so she gets to know a particular person and has someone she can rely on,” Judy suggests.

Offer a ride. Navigating in a new environment can be nerve-wracking. Take the time to find out where she lives, and ask a sister who lives nearby if she would be willing to pick her up and take her home. The car ride can be a great time for you to get to know her better, tell her about your chapter and relate any customs or traditions that she might need to know before the meeting begins.

Introduce her to your sisters. Ask someone to be responsible for introducing her to the other sisters in your chapter. Although we are all sisters in spirit, sometimes it’s difficult to walk into a room full of women you don’t know and start a conversation. Marietta recommends taking time after the business meeting for every member to share where they’ve moved from to make the unaffiliate feel welcome. Martha suggests assigning each unaffiliate a buddy, who will help her find a seat, be included in conversations and explain chapter customs as the meeting progresses.

Wear name tags. It’s so nice to be called by name—and to know who you’re talking to!

Share helpful information. Consider putting together a list of “best places” in your community to give to your unaffiliate. When you’re new to a community, having a great referral for hairdressers and reliable handymen is invaluable as is knowing the best places to shop, eat and be pampered.

If your P.E.O. community has a Reciprocity Group, give her one of their yearbooks. This will help her become familiar with what days and times each chapter meets so she can visit chapters that meet at a time convenient for her. When appropriate, invite her to attend upcoming reciprocity events and sit with members of your chapter. These social events, such as Founders’ Day, are a great way for unaffiliates to become quickly acquainted with their new P.E.O. community.

Follow up. Make an effort to let this unaffiliate know you’d like to have her visit again by calling, writing or emailing her with an invitation to your next meeting or social event. Continue keeping in touch until your chapter decides to send her an official invitation to transfer or she finds another P.E.O. home.

Make sure the corresponding secretary in your current P.E.O. Chapter has your new contact information. Ask her to send the Notice of Member Moving form to the presidents of the local chapters, the Reciprocity contact, and the organizer of the state, province or district to which you are moving.

Follow up. Once you arrive in your new community, don’t be afraid to contact the presidents of the local chapters to introduce yourself and ask to visit an upcoming meeting or social event. You can find the names and contact information of local chapter presidents in the Directory of Presidents, located on the P.E.O. website. “Use the proper P.E.O. channels, but look to make contacts on your own as well,” Judy said. “Be as bold as you can.”

Visit as many chapters as possible. “Respond when they contact you and don’t be afraid to go; they are going to welcome you with open arms,” Martha said. Once you’ve arranged to visit specific chapters, think of each as an appointment you’ve made with your sisters and keep it. Most likely, the membership chairman has announced your visit to the chapter and your sisters are eagerly awaiting the opportunity to meet you. Of course, emergencies sometimes occur, so be sure you have the phone number of your hostess or contact person to call should something unforeseen happen.

Send a note of thanks. After your visit, send a quick note of thanks to the chapter president. Let her know how much you appreciate the hospitality of the sisters in her chapter. If you’d like to visit again, let those sisters know that you’re looking forward to seeing them again soon.

Attend Reciprocity. If your P.E.O. community has a Reciprocity Group, find out when their next social event is and try to attend. This is a great way to meet a wide variety of sisters from different chapters. Often, you’ll also enjoy good food and a wonderful display of P.E.O. materials that local chapters are selling to raise money for the P.E.O. projects.

Wear your pin to church or other places where P.E.O.s might gather. “Be out there and P.E.O.s will notice,” Marietta said.

Continue paying your dues to your current chapter until you transfer to a new one. Once you accept an invitation to transfer, send a note to your former chapter so they can celebrate the good news with you.
Securing P.E.O. Emblems
by Becky Frazier, Editor, The P.E.O. Record

Deceased Members
The loss of a sister because of death can be a difficult time for the chapter. In addition to grief and sadness there can be feelings of anxiety and uncertainty about what to do regarding the member’s emblem.

A P.E.O. emblem is lent to each member of the Sisterhood for her sole use as long as she is an active member. The emblem may be buried with a deceased member. Cremation is a form of burial. A P.E.O. emblem may be enclosed with ashes in the cremation urn; however, if ashes are scattered, the emblem must be returned to the Emblem Division.

Ascertain if the emblem was buried or cremated with the member. If not, the emblem must be secured and returned, with the Emblem Return form, to the P.E.O. Emblem Division.

P.E.O. loving kindness extends to the survivors of our sisters, especially during their time of mourning. When a chapter finds it necessary to send a written request that the emblem of a deceased sister be returned to the Sisterhood, it is important to be gracious and thoughtful of the family during their grieving period. A handwritten personal note or a Request for Emblem of Deceased Member form may be mailed to the next of kin. This form is available on the P.E.O. website peointernational.org.

Be tactful when requesting the return of an emblem. Getting the emblem back should be done in a timely manner, do not approach the inactive member in a confrontational manner or treat the return of the emblem as a punishment.

The official Request for Emblem of Inactive Member form is a tactful way to let the member know she is required to turn in her pin, that she will be missed and that she has the option to reinstate her membership in the future. This is also a good opportunity to send her the Guide for Inactive Members so she knows how easy it is to reinstate when she’s ready. These materials can be found on the P.E.O. website peointernational.org.
Diane Jansen, GA, Port Charlotte, Florida, has been honored by the Christian Medical Society of Honduras and Cure International for 10 years of service in medical/dental projects, helping the needy of Honduras. Since she retired in 1999, Diane has spent two weeks each summer in the jungles of western Honduras as a nurse on a medical/dental mission. The medical clinics in San Luis are held in a school with guards holding AK47s. The workdays are eight hours long, beginning at 5:30 a.m. with morning devotions. The families start arriving in the middle of the night by foot, donkey, horse and cart, bicycle and bus. Each patient is charged $0.35—to keep their pride intact—and receives a physical and dental exam, prescription and non-prescription drugs, toothpaste and eyeglasses. Diane says, “I have grown in my faith by sharing my God-given talents and I have felt the joy in living my faith through my actions.”

Elizabeth Lindsey, FZ-GR, Tulsa, Oklahoma, was recently honored by The Antarctic Circle—an informal international group of scholars and knowledgeable amateurs interested or involved in non-scientific Antarctic studies—for restoring her late husband’s Congressional Medal. Alton A. Lindsey earned the Congressional Medal for his explorations with Admiral Richard E. Byrd on the Second Antarctic Expedition from 1933-1935. Over the years, the medal lost two rings, a ribbon and a pin. Elizabeth hired a jewelry repairman to add the two rings and she delicately sewed the ribbon and pin on for a like-new restoration. Elizabeth is proud of her 69 years in P.E.O.

Caroline Black, AD, Darnestown, Maryland, has developed Pets for Vets, a charitable organization dedicated to pairing homeless animals with America’s veterans. After earning her degree in animal science from Cornell University, she began training dogs and cats for work in the entertainment industry. Through her experiences working with therapy dogs, Clarissa saw how important animals can be in the recovery of wounded soldiers. “A lot of times these veterans who are coming home feel abandoned and they have a difficult time adjusting to civilian life,” Clarissa said. Companion animals significantly improve the mental and physical health of their owners. Clarissa says, “This is a win-win way to give back to our troops who have given so much to us. Both [the veteran and the pet] have been through traumatic events, and together they can help each other heal.”

Carol Deibert, CC, Rock Falls, Illinois, received the National Council for International Visitors’ (NCIV) Excellence in Programming Award at the NCIV 2010 National Meeting held in Washington, D.C., on February 12. It was awarded in the category of All Volunteer Community Organization (CIV) Programmer. She was one of six recipients who were nominated by their peers. Carol has been the executive director of the Rock River Valley International Fellowship for 34 years. She connects with host families and sets up visitor appointments with government officials for international visitors to her local area. She epitomizes what it means to be a citizen diplomat who promotes international education and exchange.

After teaching art at Rock Falls High School, she now creates art in her pottery studio. She also teaches pottery classes at Woodlawn Arts Academy. Carol is currently in her second term as Chapter CC president.

You Spoke, We Listened:

■ The ELF loan interest rate has been reduced from 4 to 3 percent for all loans issued after April 15, 2010. Remember—this simple interest does not start to accrue until the recipient’s stated graduation date.

■ As of May 1, 2010, individuals living at the same address may be cosigners for a loan applicant. This means that both parents may be considered as cosigners on a loan application.

■ The minimum credit score for applicants is now 625 (previously 650). Cosigners’ minimum credit score remains at 650.

■ ELF’s loan maximum is now $10,000 as announced in San Diego at the 2009 Convention of International Chapter.

Now What Needs to be Done?

■ Be informed of the policies and procedures for ELF loans. The most current information can be found on the International website.

■ Actively search for qualified ELF applicants. Remember it is not only the chapter ELF chairman who is responsible for finding applicants; every P.E.O. should be actively searching for applicants. The more sisters involved, the more qualified applicants your chapter will discover.

You and your chapter can change a woman’s life by offering her the opportunity to fund her education with a low interest rate (3 percent) ELF loan.

Make ELF’s Vision Your Vision!
Spring brings the opportunity to visit state P.E.O. conventions and to hear the questions P.E.O.s have about our College’s needs and initiatives. Therefore, this report is a series of frequently asked questions and the answers I would give if we had a one-on-one conversation.

What do you mean when you say that P.E.O.s own Cottey College?
The property, the buildings and the equipment that comprise Cottey College are owned by the P.E.O. Sisterhood. The original deeding of the property was a gift from Virginia Alice Cottey Stockard following the Supreme Convention in 1927 in exchange for an agreement that the Sisterhood would raise an endowment no less than $200,000 for the College. The partnership has been in place since that time. The insured value of the College’s property is now nearly $70 million. Of course, there is also the inestimable and uninsurable value of the reputation of the College, its programs, its faculty and its alumnae that has also grown immeasurably over the years. This value can be enhanced by P.E.O. support of growth in enrollment and new academic programs.

How does P.E.O. currently support Cottey?
Cottey is supported by a dues allocation of $6 per member. Of that amount, $4 goes into the operating budget of the College and $2 goes into a building fund that is held by the Sisterhood. The dues allocation to the operating budget makes up about 8.4 percent of the annual operating revenue of the College.

The pie chart above demonstrates the revenues of the College. Of course, many of the gifts that support the College come from individual P.E.O.s and a generous portion of the scholarship aid that Cottey provides comes from state, provincial and district P.E.O. chapters. Nevertheless, the College depends heavily on tuition and endowment income.

How is the Defining Moment campaign different from past campaigns?
“A Defining Moment” is a comprehensive campaign. Funds are being raised to build endowments that support essential areas where the College seeks to grow and improve. These are:

- Funds to increase the scholarship endowment: $10 million
- Funds to endow two faculty chairs: $3 million
- Funds to enhance the library endowment: $3 million
- Funds to build a new fine arts instructional building: $9 million
- Undesignated funds to support annual operating and strategic initiatives: $10 million

The campaign is a five-year campaign that began January 2009 and was announced publicly at the International Convention of the P.E.O. Sisterhood in San Diego. Each priority supports a goal of the 2011 strategic plan, “Building a Model for Women’s Education.”

When and how will chapters be involved in the campaign?
The short answer to this question is “now.” Chapters and P.E.O.s were invited to be involved from the time the campaign was announced. A structured Chapter Challenge will be announced at the International Convention in 2011, but any gift received from a chapter beginning January 2009 counts toward the campaign. The first phase of the campaign is focused on individual philanthropy and the second phase on the chapter challenge; however, I encourage both individuals and chapters to give generously now to the campaign to support our College. Building a habit of philanthropy among P.E.O.s will help every P.E.O. project because all our projects need our support. During the campaign we hope P.E.O.s will embrace the projects and our College as priorities of their giving every year.
IPS Recipients Say “Thank You”
by Barbara Hoffman, Chairman, P.E.O. International Peace Scholarship Board of Trustees

“One P.E.O. is the most wonderful organization that inspires young women and provides us with an opportunity to succeed in our lives! Thank you so much! Only because of you, I can be the first person in my family who will get a higher education degree!”

“One thank you so much for being the most amazing group of women ever! You’ve truly made my day/month/year/life! I’m incredibly excited and honored to be affiliated with the P.E.O. Sisterhood, and I’d like to reiterate that I will work incredibly hard to make sure that the solidarity is reciprocated.”

These are just two of the many thank-yous the IPS Board of Trustees received from the 193 recipients of the International Peace Scholarship. The 2010-2011 recipients represent 72 countries around the world with the largest numbers from Kenya, China and India. They range in age from 22 to 57 with 39 percent pursuing their Ph.D. and 61 percent studying for a master’s degree. These remarkable women are studying a wide range of subjects from cardiovascular nursing, marine management and environmental law to art conservation, documentary film and deaf education. They are attending schools in 37 states, two provinces and Washington D.C., from Hawaii to Halifax to Fort Lauderdale. Thirty-five students are attending 15 different schools in the state of New York, with 19 students studying in California.

Many of these women are already making a difference. One student started a non-government organization (NGO) in South Africa to provide training for uneducated older women; another in Ghana has started Eagle Eye Care and Vision Center focusing on ocular disease. Another developed a literacy program for minority Dalit women in Nepal, while in Armenia an NGO was developed to help the minority Yezidi children attend school. In Ethiopia an IPS recipient’s NGO focuses on adolescent girls’ empowerment and from Kyrgyzstan comes a young lady who, as part of a journalism team, tackled corruption in her country. A student from New Zealand was recognized by National Geographic for her work in sustainable food systems. In India, one woman was instrumental in developing a national campaign for people’s rights to information. These are women who have come to the United States and Canada to further their education and fulfill their dreams and for this they say thank you.

“Thank you to all the P.E.O.s. This is such a big step toward empowering women all over the world. All our dreams would not have been possible without P.E.O.s being there to support and uplift us. Our dreams and visions for betterment of women all over the world will come to pass. Being a woman from a developing and marginalized community, I could never have dreamt of pursuing higher studies without your help.”

“This is for the women and girls in Africa in general and South Africa in particular because my success is their success. I lack words to express my appreciation. I will do my best to be a true ambassador of P.E.O. The best is yet to come!”

Thanks from IPS recipients, July-August 2010.
Teachable Moments

by Mary Ann Langston, P.E.O. Program for Continuing Education Board of Trustees

Throughout our lives we encounter “teachable moments” as students or teachers—formally or not—and then as lifelong learners. Perhaps the most troublesome “lesson” is learning to accept change, especially if not of our own choosing. As we adjust to alterations in our lives caused by world events and economic issues, we must also adapt to and be aware of the changes in P.E.O. as a whole—and the separate pieces that make up our sisterhood.

The Program for Continuing Education has been particularly affected by the recent financial changes as the number of applicants increased in extraordinary numbers, greatly expanding the work of the PCE staff and the three trustees. Simultaneously, gifts and donations decreased, further challenging those making decisions about the grants. In an effort to ensure that PCE continues to be of value to as many women as possible, here are some “teachable moments” for all P.E.O.s.

The maximum grant for PCE was increased to $3,000, why didn’t our applicant receive what we requested?
The maximum grant was raised, the demands on PCE increased and donations and gifts dropped 14 percent. The trustees must adhere to the fiscal year’s budget, while aiding those with the greatest need.

We missed the 10-week deadline for applications, why couldn’t an exception be made for our applicant? Why must the chapter PCE chairman and/or her committee reread and double check the Application Form and the Income & Expense Form?
Each application is first reviewed in the PCE Office in Des Moines. Sixty percent of the applications reach Des Moines with conflicting facts, mathematical errors or other inaccuracies that must be clarified by the submitting chapter before the trustees begin evaluation. After the needed material is received in Des Moines, the corrected application packet is scanned and emailed to the trustees to be read and assessed. All errors slow the process and can often result in an application failing to meet a necessary deadline.

Though our applicant has $10,000 in savings, she doesn’t want to use it; couldn’t she receive a grant anyway?
Most of the truly needy applicants have little savings of any kind.

What do we do if we realize that our applicant might not qualify?
Never make promises to an applicant. If, after all interviews and paperwork are completed and reviewed, the committee determines that she doesn’t meet the criteria—for any reason—the chapter should tell the applicant. When appropriate they may suggest she apply later.

Why does the applicant need to have a financial plan in place before receiving a grant?
The maximum PCE grant of $3,000 rarely covers all outstanding educational costs. With the greater chance that a partial grant will be given, it needs to be evident that the applicant has plans to seek additional scholarships, borrow money, work another job or have family financial support so she will be able to complete her course of study. The trustees must be assured the applicant will accomplish her goal.

Why do the trustees need to know specifics about the job/career the applicant will pursue once she finishes the curriculum for which she needs assistance?
The primary purpose of a PCE grant is helping a woman complete a program of study so she can find a job, or receive a promotion/salary increase in her current job. It is not intended to pay for prerequisite courses which would then make her eligible for additional years of schooling—past the 24-month requirement—before she is qualified for a job that will provide a livelihood.

Thank you for your help with these “teachable moments” as we learn together what makes PCE more efficient. We trustees are grateful for your willingness to Be Part of It!
How Do They Spend Their Money?

by Ginny Petersen, P.E.O. Scholar Awards Board of Trustees

Each year, 85 brilliant young women in the United States and Canada are selected as P.E.O. Scholars and are awarded $15,000 to support their doctoral or postdoctoral work. Have you ever wondered how they use this money?

Many Scholars use their award money to pay their tuition, to support themselves or to pay for child care so they have the freedom to work on their dissertation. Others use it to enhance the experiences they are having in their program, providing them opportunities they would otherwise have to forego.

The following excerpts from the midyear progress reports filed by our 2009-2010 Scholars reveal the interesting and diverse use of the P.E.O. dollars.

Geosciences
“[I] collected approximately 400 samples of fire-scarred trees and standing tree ages in the San Juan Mountains of Colorado in order to create a chronology of fire events for the past 300-400 years. Using part of my P.E.O. scholar award, I was able to hire two student assistants. They hiked with me up steep hill slopes, and helped with carrying the field equipment, cutting and coring samples from the trees, and carrying out samples from the study sites.”

Law
“The financial resources that P.E.O. provided allowed me to pursue experiences I might not have otherwise been able to do. I was selected as one of three Yale law students to participate in a Chinese cultural program that included a two-week trip to Beijing and Shanghai. My favorite part of the trip was meeting with Chinese citizens, whose intellectual drive is extraordinary.”

Biomedical Engineering
“I am developing smart sensors to enhance the accuracy of joint replacement surgery. My work in knee and hip replacements is a captivating topic for the many P.E.O.s I’ve met, since I work with many of their surgeons to bring the next generation of technology to a field these ladies have often experienced personally. I have conducted one lab tour for them to see my work first hand and we are planning another in the coming semester.”

Anthropology
“I was invited to participate in two programs affiliated with the United Nations. Without P.E.O. support, I would not have been able to afford the cost of travel from India to Germany and Japan where the events took place. Within India, P.E.O. funds also supported my involvement in a training program on water harvesting in New Delhi.”

Optical Sciences
“Thanks to scholarship funding provided by P.E.O., I was able to finance my visit to Oregon Health and Science University to study the effects of polarized light in tissue with a highly regarded expert in the field of tissue optics.”

History of Art
“After receiving the P.E.O. Scholar Award I traveled to the Tibetan communities in Switzerland—the largest Tibetan exile population in Europe. I attended the Tibetan Institute and spoke with several scholars there, obtained access to the rich collection of Tibetan thangka paintings at the Museum der Kulturen in Basel and photographed the many instances of the Dalai Lama image in the various exile communities.”

Wildlife Ecology
“I have completed all the field and lab work for my project, including the deployment and re-collection of 30 global-positioning-system collars on bighorn sheep using net-gun helicopter captures. “The P.E.O. award is funding data analysis focusing on the demographic consequences of habitat selection in Sierra Nevada bighorn sheep, a federally endangered subspecies and one of the rarest large mammals in North America.”

Medical Doctor
“Appropriately, my multi-city residency interview tour ended in my hometown of Atlanta, where I was able to attend a luncheon by my sponsoring P.E.O. chapter and express my gratitude in person for this extraordinary experience that they made possible. This scholarship is not about the tuition it paid or the M.D. soon to be appended to my name, but a future and an investment in the promise it holds. In honor of P.E.O. and all my teachers and supporters over the many years, I know I will make the most of the opportunities given me to build a legacy truly outstanding.”

Scholar Award Nomination Forms will now be completed online and submitted electronically. The form, as seen here, can be found on the P.E.O. Scholar Awards page.
Our 2010 STARS

by Patricia Anderson, Chairman, STAR Scholarship Board of Trustees

The hallowed halls of high schools are quickly becoming outdated! Today’s high school students have more opportunities to take advantage of national and international experiences than ever before. The world is their school and they are eager to expand their horizons and educational opportunities. These students are not waiting to step into their next adventure, they already have!

Chapters recommended P.E.O. STAR Scholarship applicants from all backgrounds and varying life experiences. All recipients have experienced exceptional achievements and have demonstrated remarkable leadership capabilities.

Their experiences and accomplishments were limitless! Accolades have already come to many of these young women by attending: Congressional Student Leadership Conference at Georgetown University, the National Young Leadership Conference in Washington, D.C., and the Virginia Governor’s School NASA Mentorship Program. Others attended the Global Young Leaders Conference in New York City and Global Youth Assembly in Edinburgh, Scotland. One recipient was among ten Girl Guides selected from across Canada to attend “Power of Youth,” an international conference held in London, England.

Two students decided to graduate early to pursue career-oriented educational opportunities while other students were pursuing dual enrollment options and one was to receive her associate degree before her high school graduation! Another recipient worked for a United States Senator in Washington, D.C. New York City was the destination for several others, one to participate in Rotary International’s UN Day and another to play with a wind ensemble at Carnegie Hall.

Students were selected to serve in their communities in different capacities—one as a member of the superintendent’s student advisory board, another as a school representative on a local bank’s advisory board and others on community youth advisory boards.

These young women are giving back to their schools and communities, with several having received The President’s Volunteer Service Award. Many were recognized as National Merit Semifinalists, another received the National Hispanic Recognition Award. They were participants in their respective Girl’s States, O’Brien Youth Leadership seminars, student councils, class offices, school and community musicals and church activities.

Many applicants have already tested their entrepreneurial skills. Alexandra Victoria Bachannikov (Chapter AL, Reston, Virginia) founded “Soccer Buddies” which collects and distributes gently used soccer equipment to underprivileged children overseas.

Angela Maryam Abolhessani (Chapter BM, Scottsdale, Arizona) formed a charity program raising $20,000 to build bathrooms at an orphanage in India. Charlotte Serenity Bliss (Chapter DU, Venice, Florida) organized backpacksforhope.com to send clothing, shoes and school supplies to a Honduran orphanage.

Virginia Margaret Goss (Chapter D, Atlanta, Georgia), asked local public schools for donations of useful school supplies the last week of school and sent them to children in war torn areas where U.S. soldiers are stationed. Rose Maria Oliva (Chapter AM, Easton, Massachusetts) has established her own clothing label and has a complete fall/winter fashion collection. Neerhika Krothapalli (Chapter Z, Farmington, Connecticut) designed a method of extracting oil from Jatropha seeds that meets international biodiesel standards.

In the words of Yi Wu (Chapter CK, Little Rock, Arkansas), echoing the thoughts of numerous STAR recipients, “I have kept my promise ‘to shoot for the moon’ by setting ambitious career goals. I am not working aimlessly, but rather with a clear direction and focus. Nothing will cause me to deviate from this path.” ☛

Susan Hildebrand
Arizona
Wild About P.E.O.

Never having lived in any house longer than five years, “move” is a frequently used word in Susan Hildebrand’s vocabulary. She was born in South Dakota but as the daughter of a mining engineer, she went to 17 different schools before attending the University of Wyoming where she majored in French and business. Susan spent more than 20 years in the information technology industry in sales, marketing and software development and was one of the first female directors for Honeywell Information Systems. As a second career, she and her husband owned and operated a 16-room bed and breakfast in the Ozarks of Arkansas. They are both on their third careers as real estate agents in Arizona. Susan has lived in several states, as well as in Australia, Canada and Germany. Having resided in Arizona off and on for more than 14 years, she happily returned in 2003 and plans to stay. Susan and her husband Jim have been married more than 29 years and have a “blended family” of three children and five grandchildren.

P.E.O. has always been a part of Susan’s life with her grandmother, mother and two aunts all 50-plus year members before entering Chapter Eternal. Susan was initiated into her mother’s Chapter C, Ely, Nevada, in 1967. She had the thrill of initiating her daughter Stacy as a fourth generation P.E.O. Susan’s father gave the keynote address at
The Nevada State P.E.O. Convention in 1964. As a charter member, Susan had the privilege of helping form a new chapter, DE, Scottsdale, Arizona, and Chapter DB, Heber Springs, Arkansas.

When not working in real estate or on P.E.O., Susan enjoys shopping, reading, spending time with her “miracle” granddaughter and traveling the open roads with her husband in her red Corvette convertible.

Deborah H. Taylor
British Columbia
British Columbia: Celebrating 100 Years of P.E.O. Smiles

Deborah Taylor was born and raised in New York City. Following in her parents’ footsteps as leaders in the Jewish community, Deborah has been involved in community service from an early age.

It was not until Deborah moved to British Columbia with her husband Brad that she learned about P.E.O. She was a charter member of Chapter BI, Richmond. She later transferred to Chapter AY, Vancouver. Deborah’s P.E.O. sisters became her family and attended her call to the British Columbia Bar in 1997 and were with her at a chapter meeting when she learned that she was offered partnership at the law firm of Lindsay Kenney LLP, where she practices insurance defense law.

Deborah has held most chapter officer positions and served as chapter president three times. In addition to serving as president of British Columbia provincial chapter this year, she is extremely honored to be a member of the Special Committee to Study P.E.O. Ceremonies and Meeting Procedure.

Dana S. Osterndorf
District of Columbia
P.E.O.: The Gift That Keeps On Giving

“Cherish this gift” was whispered into Dana Ostendorf’s ear when initiated into her mother’s chapter, H, District of Columbia, in 1979. Both Dana and her past state president mother relish the many friendships made and the opportunities to grow together in P.E.O.
Hailing from Blacksburg, Virginia, Dana has spent much of her life in the Washington, D.C., area. Shortly after graduating with a B.S. degree in fashion merchandising from the University of Maryland, she became a department manager and later an assistant buyer for Woodward & Lothrop. After obtaining valuable insight into the fashion world, Dana returned to school to obtain a M.S. degree in merchandising and marketing from Virginia Tech. While pursuing her studies and working as a graduate teaching assistant, she received a P.E.O. ELF loan and became a strong supporter of our philanthropies.

Returning to the D.C. area after receiving her degree, Dana worked at the Scottish Rite Masonic Headquarters where she has held many positions. P.E.O. is never far from her mind as she works for two BILs; one the husband of a past state president of the District of Columbia.

In her spare time, Dana enjoys exploring third-world countries, reading, sewing, gardening, caring for neighbors’ pets and spending time on the family farm.

Chapter DU, P.E.O. Seminar on Empowering Women through Development

by Pat Brim-Williams, DU, Seattle, Washington

This spring a seminar on women’s education and development was held at the new library in Burien, Washington. It was organized by Chapter DU’s philanthropy committee chairman Kathleen Johnson, graduate of Cottey College, and education chairman June Yormark. Chapter DU president Jeanette Burrage focused on the role Cottey College plays in educating American women and of the numerous International Peace Scholarships which educate women globally to return to their countries and enable women in the fields of health, development and the state of women’s lives internationally. It featured Cottey College education and the international efforts for women’s health and development that are often the outcome of such an education.

In a forum attended by P.E.O.s and members of the public, Ambassador Darryl N. Johnson, retired from the U.S. State Department and University of Washington professor, served as master of ceremonies for the presentation of eight non-governmental organizations (NGOs) from Seattle who talked about projects that empower and educate women worldwide to end poverty. Kathleen Delph of Agros International spoke of land ownership and holistic development. Elisa Scalise, attorney for Rural Development Institute, shared her experience enforcing property rights of women in Rwanda, Burundi, India and Kyrgyzstan. Chris Wolff of Unitus stressed maximizing microfinance programs that focus on women. Nancy Bacon oversees a program called Bahia Street, concentrating on local power to educate women and end poverty in Brazil. Marissa Vignali, Ph.D., of Seattle BioMedical Research Institute, leads research for malaria vaccines and their impact on women’s health internationally. Kiersten Israel-Ballard of Program for Appropriate Technology in Health (PATH) focuses on solar or flash-heat for pasteurizing breast milk to prevent mother-to-child transmission of HIV. And lastly, Kathleen Johnson, Cottey Graduate, talked passionately of her efforts in Thailand to eliminate the trafficking of women and children. It was due to Kathleen and Darrel’s involvement internationally in Thailand, Ukraine, India and Micronesia that we were able to hear from these incredible young Seattle-based representatives of NGOs who were energetic and passionate about the need for education and the development of women internationally as a path to peace.

This forum was remarkable in that it showed the importance of Cottey College and the historical role it has played in international focus on women’s education and the outreach of such educational programs to better the condition of women throughout the world.

That night the group had a pizza and pajama party where they played games and earned prizes. On the third day, they shopped at Morrow Bay, had lunch at The Apple Farm, visited a lavender farm, shopped in Solvang (a Scandinavian town) and had dinner at Andersen’s Pea Soup Restaurant. P.E.O. Singles Group
One rainy, chilly Saturday evening in November, Daphne Starr, LD, Crystal Lake, Illinois, was lonely and feeling sorry for herself. As a widow with no family in the area and most of her friends married, she was feeling low.

She looked at her P.E.O. Chapter yearbook and thought about what a wonderful group of women they were and figured that some of them must be single. She started to check the names and sure enough—there were 10 sisters who were either widowed or divorced. Daphne wondered if they would be interested in being part of a singles group. She called them and suggested dinner to discuss the premise and eight of them responded favorably. They met, had a delightful dinner, chatted excitedly about possible events and drew names to become teams of two—and so the P.E.O. Singles of Chapter LD were born.

The group’s first outing was to The Little Traveler in Geneva, Illinois, where they separated to shop then joined together later for lunch and “show and tell.”

“One thing we have all agreed on, we are glad that there are such wonderful women in P.E.O. and that we single sisters have been able to form this special bond.”

Friday night dinners—out or at a member’s home—are almost fixtures for the group. They have movie nights and game nights; they took a trip to the Japanese Gardens in Rockford, Illinois, and visited the Chicago Botanical Gardens. Each event strengthens their bonds.

Daphne says, “There is always talk about our involvement in P.E.O., our families our hopes and sometimes our fears. When one of us is ill, the others provide meals and whatever services our sister might need. We’ve connected. One thing we have all agreed on, we are glad that there are such wonderful women in P.E.O. and that we single sisters have been able to form this special bond.”

The book relates the development of the small town through the eyes of Eileene as a young journalist who later earned a Real Estate Broker’s License and an Appraiser’s License. Eileene was married and widowed at an early age with a daughter. She then remarried. Later in her life, Eileene was confined to her home by an illness that took away her walking ability and rekindled her interest in writing. Eileene has written two books and has had hundreds of her stories published in newspapers and magazines.

Allison Martin
Chapter NZ, Byron, Illinois
Initiation date: October 5, 2006

For Allison Martin, civic involvement, patriotism and the support of United States veterans are of the utmost importance. At age 28, in addition to her commitment to P.E.O., her full time job as the national accounts sales trainer for Pella Windows and Doors and her role as adjunct faculty member at Joliet Junior College, Allison finds time to volunteer as the director of Illini Girls State (IGS).

How were you introduced to P.E.O.?
My mom (Mary Jo Martin) is a member of P.E.O.—we’re in the same chapter—NZ in Byron. I've been really fortunate to interact with a lot of her friends over the years and when they invited me to become a member I was honored. There are a lot of women in my chapter I really look up to.

What kind of P.E.O. programs do you enjoy? Have you presented any programs?
In Byron we have a time at meetings where people are able to brag about something. So whether it’s a member of their family or something they recently did, sisters get to share their experiences. It creates a good dialogue and is a great way to get to know people. We get excited about each other’s accomplishments. My favorite part is learning about other members' successes. It’s very rewarding for me. I also attended a P.E.O. meeting at a chapter in Charleston, Illinois, where they had a program on preventive health for women and that was neat.

I have not had a chance to present any programs, but I anticipate doing so in the future. After Illini Girls State (IGS), which will be held this summer, I would like to give a presentation to my chapter about the IGS program. Sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, IGS is a leadership program for soon-to-be female high school seniors from throughout the state of Illinois who are interested in politics, patriotism and civic involvement. IGS encourages women to take an active role in leadership and I know my P.E.O. sisters see value in that.

What are you most proud of in your life?
I obtained my master’s degree in communications at Eastern Illinois University at the age of 22. That is something I am very very proud of. Now I teach college classes in public speaking at Joliet Junior College where I feel like I’m making a real difference. The number one fear among people is public speaking—people fear it more than death. If I can help students take a fear and overcome it or give them tips to use when they have to approach the fear, I am making an impact.

In addition to teaching, I work full time. During the day I lead a hectic sales life but one night a week I can go into the classroom and work with students. It’s so rewarding to hear from my students at the end of the semester saying “I loved this class” and “public speaking isn't that bad.”

I am also very fortunate to be the director of Illini Girls State this year. Being director is a huge undertaking. I participated in the program in 1998 and it changed my life. I am honored to be able to give back in some way, to provide an inspirational experience for so many women each summer.

What do you like to do in your free time?
I have a very supportive family and I love to be able to spend time with them. I have one brother who lives near Saint Louis. My parents live near Rockford and have been married 35 years. My family provides such a great support system and the time I spend with them is the most meaningful.

I also enjoy spending time with my friends and my boyfriend. I like to travel and love to shop.
P.E.O. Finances and Service Policy
The following new policy regarding the focus of chapter funds, fundraising activities and community service is in effect:

In keeping with the mission of P.E.O., the focus of chapter funds and fundraising activities shall be International Chapter projects, followed by state/provincial/district projects. In order to protect International Chapter’s exemption with the United States Internal Revenue Service, chapters must demonstrate the mission of P.E.O. through financial support. Therefore, P.E.O. dollars, offered and earned by members in the name of P.E.O., should be considered primarily for approved P.E.O. projects and/or the P.E.O. Foundation with minimal chapter funds used for outside philanthropic or local educational activities.

To strengthen P.E.O.’s visible influence in the community, chapters and chapter members are encouraged to offer their talents and skills, time and service for local philanthropic and educational endeavors.

Website Redesigned
Be sure to check out the new design of P.E.O.’s website. Active members may go to peointernational.org and click on member login. Your chapter president will give you the username and password or you may click on the Contact Us button to request the information.

The website has grown tremendously since it was implemented and this redesign should make navigation easier. You will also see a new search feature on the site. Forms are available with a click of the mouse and all our listings are updated weekly. The What’s New section will alert you to policy changes and information you will want to know.

Chapter Contributions
Reminder! Chapter checks for any contribution to the projects and the P.E.O. Foundation should be made payable to the state treasurer, not to the project or Foundation, and mailed directly to your state treasurer. All contributions from individuals should be made payable directly to the project or Foundation and mailed promptly to the P.E.O. Executive Office. State treasurers and executive assistants should forward all contributions promptly to the treasurer of International Chapter so that proper acknowledgments and/or IRS-required notices may be sent.
